

Jermaine King is a vision-driven change agent with over 13 years of experience leading large emergency management, human resources, and hospitality organizations. As the current Chief, Public Protection & Safety for Edwards Air Force Base, he directs the synchronized efforts of over 700 military law enforcement officials to secure 308,000 acres, 54 different organizations, and defense programs valued at $18.1 billion dollars.

Jermaine is a strategic leader with over 18 years of proven experience on instruction of curriculum to over 700,000 military and civilian personnel in over 133 career fields. He has produced over 605 professional development courses for 274 organizations. Currently, he is the Professor, Master of Business Administration (MBA) for Trine University and Professor, Homeland Security & Emergency Management for Barton College.

Jermaine has over 41 certifications and is a continuous process improvement professional with certifications as a Project Management Professional (PMP), Six Sigma Black Belt, Agile Project Manager, and Scrum Master with 8 years of experience and 31 successful projects under his belt.

He has served on the Senior Enlisted Advisory Council for the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce and was awarded the National Public Service Award and Federal Recognition Award for his dedication to the local community.

Jermaine currently resides in Edwards Air Force Base in California.